Health Informatics New Zealand (HiNZ) is the event organiser a not-for-profit organisation that supports the field of health informatics and links a diverse group of professionals in the health and IT sectors. HiNZ members include clinicians, IT professionals, health sector managers, government, industry, academics, students, and other NGOs. HiNZ builds and strengthens connections between these groups and encourages the sharing of ideas across the sector. The organisation was founded in 2000 and is an incorporated society with a volunteer elected board and a paid management team. HiNZ has run the annual HiNZ Conference for the past 15 years. It is the premier networking event in New Zealand for professionals interested in health IT. HiNZ supports professional development within the digital health field with a wide range of services including the HiNZ webcast library which has over 600 slide/video presentations from digital health experts.
