Coviu is a video consultation solution built to power connected health use cases in Australia and beyond. Built on modern WebRTC standards as a cloud solution, Coviu is accessible via the Web, affordable and scalable. Coviu comes with key features included that video consultations require, such as application screen sharing, whiteboard, sharing and annotation of imaging and other clinical documents and an ability to take payments. At the same time, Coviu has been architected to be extensible with custom features and branding. Coviu offers several products: We provide an online self-service team product for individual practices, clinic groups, insurances, hospitals and the like, who are setting up telehealth team services between clinicians, or providing primary healthcare services to patients. Examples of services that are delivered over Coviu are: speech pathology lessons, dietitian advice, psychological support, dual-care sessions, and multi-disciplinary case conferences. We also offer an API product that allows other eHealth systems an easy to integrate video consultation solution. Coviu adheres to Australian digital health security and privacy principles and encrypts all data, audio and video connections.
